

Album Info

The Album Info control group isn't in every CE4 plugin. When present, though, you will find it at the head of the Color Palette control pane.

The Album Info settings fulfill several purposes.

Album Title is concatenated into your page `<title>` for search engine optimization, and will be used to identify your album to the auto index, whether using TTG CE4 Auto Index or the TTG CE4 Pages "Galleries" page.

Album Description may appear in your auto index depending upon your chosen layout. Even when not appearing in your gallery index, though, the information is used to fill the `<meta name="description" . . . elements` for (very limited, perhaps useless) search engine optimization, and fills various attributes in the Open Graph Protocol used to identify your gallery to Facebook and Twitter.

Album Thumbnail is used only by the auto index when you wish to name a specific thumbnail to represent the gallery. You may also leave Album Thumbnail blank, and the auto index will automatically select an image from your gallery. For more information on Album Thumbnail selection or assignment, see the Auto Index documentation.
